

indi fortnight celebrations

Driving on Bangalore streets, I have seen a large number of cloth banners at the entrance of PSU's, academic institutions and R&D establishments announcing Hindi fortnight celebrations.

These Hindi celebrations are cheerful affairs, and there are a large number of attractive events and cash prizes (why always cash prizes I wonder?).

NAL too rounded off its fortnight-wide celebrations with an impressive function with Prof M Vimala of Bangalore University as the chief guest, and featuring the Hindi Day lecture by Dr R M V G K Rao, Head, FRP Division; I would've loved to be present for Dr Rao's lecture because he has wide experience in managing R&D programmes (his lecture was titled: "R&D - How to balance?"), but sadly I had to be away to deliver a lecture in Hindi myself elsewhere!

As always, Dr P S R Murthy and his Hindi Cell did a fine job in organising NAL's Hindi celebrations.
